

HSUS and the Oil Spill...Silence

The title of their organization is the Humane Society of the United States.

They have told us how they have been off to Haiti saving dogs and other animals after earthquakes did damage. (Although the small island is known to not have many, if any, dogs)

They told us how they went in and scooped up dogs and animals right after Katrina and saved them. But no one for the life of me can tell me where those animals were sent to and they cannot produce records of any actual rescues.

They show us close-up photos of dogs with sad eyes...in cages.

But they don't bother to tell you that many of those photos were taken in vet's offices in their holding pens of animals waiting to be operated on, or were being given medications, etc. Not really photos of animals being mistreated...that is why the photos are seldom "wide screen" and almost always close up of just a cage or two.

Funny how silent HSUS has been with the obvious catastrophe about to occur along America's gulf coast shores...oil heading to areas that will kill millions of natural habitats and their animals.

HSUS, with their millions and millions of your donated dollars for rescue...has not made a single announcement regarding the gulf region and how they plan on helping the USDA and others try to save the area's wildlife.

You know...a huge...."Humane" effort being required.

Oh, I forgot...HSUS just got through telling us that USDA was nothing more than a puppy mill itself.

Guess we are lucky to have HSUS on the watch for us. Although at this point they seem a bit like Mighty Mouse without the cape or the ability to fly. A bit more like Batman on a drunken weekend.

Now if we can just get HSUS off their dead butts and actually do something other than stealing peoples' dogs and then selling them at local Pet stores.

But that would be logical and responsible.

Neither seems to be in HSUS's operating plans.
